

A close-up photograph of a person's lower body and a puddle. The person is wearing bright yellow rain boots and light blue pajama-style bottoms with a colorful polka-dot pattern. They are standing in a shallow, brownish puddle filled with grass clippings and debris. A large splash of water is captured mid-air, rising from the boot area. The background shows more grass and a few fallen leaves.

Soil is our greatest asset – we need it to build local jobs and fight depopulation

The local economy is too fragile as it depends on pig farming and only one slaughterhouse

Urbanization drains villages. Food and farming are keys to build community where people want to live

Hospitals need to serve food that keep people healthy

The quality of public service is becoming too dependent on a fragile global food system

Urban production can increase sustainability and build communities

Læring

- ❖ Formålsdrevet – en fælles klar vision
- ❖ Politisk fokus på 'Hvorfor og 'Hvordan' – 'Hvad' besluttes af virksomheder, landmænd, borgere.
- ❖ Samarbejde på tværs
- ❖ Tillid og forståelse i fokus
